Bosch launches Training Catalogue

Bosch Security Systems has launched its Bosch Security Academy catalogue detailing its comprehensive range of training courses available to installers and end-users.

Bosch Training Academy aims to bring the highest level of manufacturer training to the industry, to improve product knowledge, competency and professionalism. Courses within the Catalogue are run free of charge and are relevant for installation engineers and sales teams. The courses cover the selection, installation, operation and maintenance of CCTV systems, IP networks and intruder alarms.

Paul Wong, Managing Director of Bosch Security Systems says: "The courses are designed to give a full overview of Bosch products and as much 'hands-on' time with the products so participants leave with the confidence that they need to specify, promote, install and maintain Bosch equipment.

"The Training Academy is also the cornerstone to the Bosch Security Systems Dealer programme, which helps professional installers stand out from the competition. Companies wishing to become a Bosch Security Systems Dealer must commit to training a certain number of staff to the appropriate level."

All training courses are located at Bosch Security Systems Head Office. To request a Bosch Academy Training Catalogue or for more information on the courses please contact: Paolo Mule on 01895 878012 or email Paolo.Mule@uk.bosch.com
